Governor Bill Richardson to stay in Washington to fight for Cannon

WASHINGTON, D.C. – New Mexico Governor Bill Richardson will stay in Washington, D.C. at the request of one of the BRAC commissioners who supports the Governor’s efforts to keep Cannon Air Force Base open.

“The situation is very fluid,” Governor Bill Richardson said. “We continue to have discussions with commissioners about various scenarios to keep Cannon open.

“This is an important decision facing the state. I will remain here to lobby the BRAC until the last possible moment to make sure we save Cannon.”
